

Welcome to Scouts!

The next step in the Scouting
Movement

What's different?

For new scouts here, it will be understandably scary, but new adventures await!

One of the main differences is that it just is lead by Patrol leaders. Personally, I only knew scouts, so, this is by research.

Scouts lead the activities, and allow you to be challenged in your own ways, and grow as a person learning life skills for scouts.

You'll need to learn how to lead yourself, and become more responsible.

But, that's just part of the fun!

What's the same?

In scouts, Badges are given out and earned still but with different objectives. To reach the goal, you will need to do more, making it more deserving.

In scouts, if you need a bit of help with something, just ask! Mature explorers, Leaders and other scouts will be happy to help with your question.

The 'Troops'

Earlier, I told you about the Troops. A Troop is made up of people in a group; and the Troop is made up of Patrols.

Patrols are similar. It's lead by one scout Patrol leader (Also known as the PL) and Assistant Patrol leader (APL)

Learning in scouts

Learning life skills in scouts is quite different to learning in Cubs.

In Scouts, it's more interactive, and you learn by doing.

In fact, you can Camp longer (more time with mates) and try new things.
